In The Garden 6

Springtime is showing how wonderful nature is and setting fruit for the summer crops....Use your favourite fertilizer now to give the plants help to produce their fruit or seeds. Everything needs a boost! Look out for the pesky bugs, Aphids on the Roses, Snails, Slugs and others that want to make a meal of your garden...To rid aphids, spraying water on the plant or mixing dishwashing liquid 30 ml per 1 Litre of water, as often as needed, is an inexpensive way.... Snails, Slugs and other pests need a different treatment... Collect them by hand early morning then dispose of them.... You can also place fire ashes or saw-dust around the plant which they won't cross....

Cheers and enjoy,
Wendy Garvie

PORT WAKEFIELD UNITING CHURCH GREAT OUTBACK BYO PICNIC

For the past 2 years, Port Wakefield Uniting Church has held a Great Outback BBQ to raise awareness of and funds for Frontier Services. This year, due to COVID restrictions, it was decided to change it to a BYO picnic on Sunday, 4th October. Janet Woodward, Fellowships Secretary of the Uniting Church in South Australia was a brilliant guest speaker at the morning Church Service. She spoke about the invaluable work of the Bush Chaplains and work parties who travel to remote areas to make a positive difference in the lives of others. She included a Powerpoint presentation of Frontier Services personnel at work, including Bush Chaplain Sunny and a working party he took to Mt. Searle Station near Leigh Creek. They stayed there for a week doing much needed repairs, returning back to Adelaide at the end of September.

After the service the congregation adjourned to the Port Wakefield Sports complex to meet up with others who had attended their own services before coming to Port Wakefield for lunch. The result was a wonderful day of learning about the work of Frontier Services and fellowship with others over lunch and into the afternoon. Approximately $2,500 was raised from donations, a COVID safe trading table and the sale of Christmas cards and other Frontier Services goods.

Great Moments in Australian History

In the lead up to the 1956 Games, crowds lined the streets to cheer the Olympic torch relay as it made its way from Cairns to Melbourne. However, a uni student named Barry Larkin and his mates thought Australians were taking the festivities a bit too seriously. The torch relay wasn't some sacred tradition, after all; it had actually been invented by Nazi Germany in 1936. What the event needed, they decided, was a quality student prank.

As the relay approached Sydney, Larkin and his friends painted a chair leg silver, attached a pudding tin to the top, and lit up a pair of kerosene-soaked undies. Somehow, this was enough to convince a police escort that he was the official bearer of the Olympic flame. After jogging through a crowd of 30,000 cheering people, Larkin presented his "torch" to Mayor Pat Hills in a ceremony at Sydney Town Hall.

The mayor was just beginning his speech when an aide whispered that maybe something wasn't quite right about the pudding tin filled with flaming jocks. Ten minutes later, the real torch bearer finally arrived. Larkin had already disappeared into the crowd by then, extremely pleased with himself.

Interested in supporting your community during disasters?

Red Cross Emergency Services are recruiting and training new and existing volunteers to support community members in emergencies.

Red Cross volunteers help people affected by an emergency, disaster or traumatic event by providing care and comfort.

Our work includes basic principles of support to promote natural recovery. This involves helping people to feel safe, connected to others, calm and hopeful, access physical, emotional and social support, and feel able to help themselves.

Training opportunities for people interested in volunteering:

Balaklava CWA rooms, corner George and Scotland streets, Balaklava

Friday, 23 October from 9.30am to 3pm. Participants will need to bring their own lunch. Tea and coffee facilities will be available.
