In The Garden Volume 16

Spring is here in all its glory! Such a wonderful time of year, with the promise of more wonders to come. The preparations and plantings done are ready to burst into life, making a glorious display. The Wattles and Gum Trees are flowering, and the crops are a beautiful green and looking lovely. Everywhere one looks, it is a gorgeous sight...

To plant in the veggie patch now are Chives, Dwarf Beans, Tomatoes, Pumpkins, Potatoes, Peas, Capsicum, Melons, Celery, Carrots, Cucumber.

In The Flower Garden, Alyssum, Cosmos, Lobelia, Sunflower, Virginian Stock, Poppy, Portulaca, Salvia, Statice, Shasta Daisy...

Enjoy a wonderful Spring!

Cheers
Wendy Garvie.

PORT WAKEFIELD
(The Chronicle Jan 20, 1906)

January 16-- Snakes, for some reason best known to themselves, have apparently left their haunts out amongst the saltbush and old quarries and have come into the township and taken up their abode in houses and sheds, much to the annoyance of the inhabitants.

Some people assert that it is a sign of heavy rains later on, while the majority agree that it is a hint to go about armed and well shod both day and night, as a cold foot placed unexpectedly on the tender part of a snake often leads to serious consequences.

Port Wakefield CFS News

The first meeting of Port Wakefield Cadets went well, with a group discussion on the code of conduct and future group activities followed by a quick tour of town in the fire truck.

You'll see your CFS crew out and about over the next few weeks as we conduct our annual check of all the fire hydrants in town.

Wakefield grants backing small businesses

SMALL businesses in Wakefield Regional Council looking to rebrand or renovate can apply for funding assistance through a new local grant program, set to open next month.

WRC will launch the $40,000 Small Business Incentives program on September 1. Grants will be offered in two separate categories, with up to $1500 available under the Promote and Develop stream for businesses looking to enhance the skills of employees or market business activities. Businesses can receive up to $3000 under the Innovate and Renovate stream for projects that seek to find new ways of working to give the business a competitive edge.

WRC mayor, Rodney Reid, said the Small Business Incentive program follows Council's commitment to make Wakefield a great place to do business and a great place to belong, outlined in the 10-year Community Plan, Wakefield 2030.

"Wakefield 2030 includes as a key theme 'Thriving Region', with strategies and priority actions to drive growth and prosperity in the region," Mr Reid said. "Building on the excellent feedback from the COVID-19 support package, the Small Business Incentives program aims to encourage small businesses to start up, grow, innovate and develop.

To be eligible, businesses (including sole traders) must have less than 20 employees and be based in the Wakefield region or show evidence of a move to the region within three months of the application. The business will need to have a majority of its clients and/or operations within the region and specifically benefit the local community. All applicants must be able to contribute towards the activity on a dollar-for-dollar basis. The application process will mirror the COVID-19 Business Support Grant program, with both online and hand-written applications available.

Full details, guidelines and application instructions are available on Council's website www.wrc.sa.gov.au/our-community/grants or by calling the WRC office on 8862 0800. The grant period will remain open until the funding pool is exhausted.

Did you know?

The average human has 10,000 taste buds, which last for two weeks before being replaced. But the rate of regeneration slows with age, so older people often have only half as many taste buds as children.
