LET'S GLOW!

DIY Refrigerator Deodorising Tabs ...

You know those mysterious kitchen smells that seem to come out of nowhere? They are by far one of the hardest things about being an adult. Where do they come from? What do I do once I've found the source?

What if I never find it?? I get antsy just thinking about it. While I can't speak for everyone, the fridge is a big culprit in my house. My love of leftovers ensures that at some point or other, the kitchen will smell a little ripe. And when it does, I just pop in a couple of these refrigerator deodorising tabs. They absorb odours and leave a fresh scent to help get rid of (or mask!) those stubborn food smells.

At the risk of being a buzzkill, it should be noted that step one of deodorizing your fridge involves tossing out the leftovers and cleaning up any spills. No matter how many deodorizers you stick in there, it won't do much good if you've got a mouldy block of cheese hiding in the dairy drawer. But don't feel like you need to give the fridge a deep clean. A quick once-over will do just fine to get rid of any major smell-makers. Once that's done, whip up a few of these deodorizing tabs to absorb any leftover odours and freshen with essential oils.

Ingredients:

· 2 cups baking soda · 1/3 cup water · Silicone mould -
20 drops essential oil of your choice

Instructions:

1. Combine all ingredients in a medium bowl and stir to combine. The mixture should be the consistency of wet sand and if you grab a handful it should clump together easily. If it doesn't, add more water a teaspoon at a time until it reaches the right consistency.
2. Spoon the mixture into your silicone mould. Firmly press the baking soda mixture down so it forms a compact disc.
3. Place the mould on the counter and let them dry for 48 hours.
4. Once they are fully dry, store them in an airtight Tupperware container in a cool, dry place. To use, put one on a small plate in the back of the fridge. Replace every 30 days or so.

Keep On Glowing!

Port Wakefield CFS members will be demonstrating Road Rescue Procedures at the Balaklava Show this Saturday September 24th.

Thought for the day

So many gods, so many creeds,
so many paths that wind and wind.
While just the art of being kind,
is all this sad world needs.

The Central Advocate October 20th 1905

PORT WAKEFIELD-- During the last two days we have had nearly 3/4 inch of rain, backed up with a boisterous wind, which has been the means of refreshing crops and feed, and also driving in some very high tides. A fear is expressed that the late sown wheat will suffer from this heavy weather. The city fathers, having the interests of the town at heart, are having a thorough cleaning up of streets and otherwise making the town wear an attractive appearance.

On account of the Corporation paying for sparrow heads and eggs nearly the whole population of male boys are engaged in the wholesale murder of small birds and the pillaging of their nests. Around almost every building can be seen the remains of nests and the contents secured, while here and there the headless bodies of birds point to the fearful death that has overtaken them, and it has often been the wonder and astonishment of many to see the size and length of ladders two small boys can erect against a building without destroying themselves or the houses they have selected to plunder. Every hollow post in the fences within miles of the town has been thoroughly searched and cleared of everything in the shape of eggs. On one or more occasions during these excursions snakes have been met, but the sight of these reptiles have in no way daunted the egg and bird destroyers.
